Timeline

1914	The stockbroking firm of Weddle Beck & Company was formed in June 1914, two months before the start of World War I.
1923	In the early days of the firm a brisk arbitrage business was conducted with Paris and there was a banking business with the joint stock banks consisting of Barclays, Lloyds, Midland and National Provincial Banks.
1933	In 1933 a department was established to deal with new issues. The shares of a number of established companies were brought to the stock exchange for quotation and the firm acted as official stockbrokers to these firms.
1966	By the 1960s Dudley Weddle considered it would make sense to amalgamate with another stockbroking firm of a similar size. Nothing could be more natural, therefore, than a merger with Walker, Crips and Company, as the senior partners of both firms had been friends for some considerable years. The amalgamation of the two firms was effected on 28 November 1966 resulting in Walker, Crips, Weddle, Beck & Company.
1996	Admitted to the London Stock Exchange as a fully listed PLC.
2001	Acquisition of Keith, Bayley, Rogers & Co stockbroking business.
2005	Acquisition of London York group providing financial planning and pension management services.
2008	Walker Crips Structured Investments established
2015	Acquisition of Barker Poland Asset Management discretionary and advisory business.
2019	Walker Crips Stockbrokers Limited changes its name to Walker Crips Investment Management Limited.
2020	Acquisition of clients from Yorkshire-based IFA, Mark Heap.
Present	Today, Walker Crips Group PLC is a public limited company, listed on the London Stock Exchange. After more than a century, Walker Crips' core value remains unchanged; to serve our clients and to deliver good customer outcomes.

Regulatory capital

What is regulatory capital?

Regulatory capital is a critical requirement to protect our customers' deposits and investments. This is a core component of prudential regulation and helps to support financial stability across the industry.

Security of client money and client assets

How does Walker Crips hold client money?

Walker Crips holds client money in segregated bank accounts, in accordance with the FCA client money rules.

Walker Crips performs daily client money reconciliations to ensure funds held in segregated bank accounts accurately reflect all client assets. It has in place a signed written undertaking from each of the underlying banks confirming that no right of offset exists between credit balances held on behalf of its clients and any indebtedness of Walker Crips, or any of its subsidiaries, held with the same institution.

In the event that any of the banks default, losses would be shared by each client in proportion to their share of total funds held with the bank which has failed. Where a shortfall is identified, investors may be entitled to claim compensation from the UK's Financial Services Compensation Scheme (FSCS).

How much protection is provided?

FSCS rules have fixed the maximum compensation limit at £85,000 per person, per authorised institution. Investors should be aware however that all of their balances with any particular bank, including their personal accounts, would be aggregated in the event that the compensation scheme was triggered. More information on this is available on the FSCS website (<http://www.fscs.org.uk>).

What about assets held by nominee companies?

Walker Crips uses nominee companies to register and administer holdings on its clients' behalf. Each nominee company is a separate, non-trading legal entity, wholly owned by Walker Crips. Whilst legal title of the assets is held in the name of the nominee company, beneficial ownership is retained by the client.

Client investments are held in pooled accounts with those of other clients, meaning that individual entitlements may not be identifiable by either separate certificates, other physical documents of title or electronic record.

Any irrecoverable shortfall following the default of a custodian would be shared by each client in proportion to their original share of the assets in the pool.

Clients' assets that are registered in the name of one of our nominee companies are held in trust and are not regarded by third parties as belonging to Walker Crips. In the unlikely event that Walker Crips defaults, clients' assets would remain entirely separate from those of Walker Crips and could not be used to settle any debts accrued by Walker Crips.

Additional assurances and controls for safeguarding client money and client assets

In addition to the measures described above, Walker Crips offers the following assurances and controls for the safeguarding of Client assets:
